Dear Friend,

Every year the Bad Weather Supplies team welcomes returning clients and new guests alike. Staff are always happy to see the familiar faces of folks we served in previous years, but it is also a painful reminder that, for some individuals, the experience of homelessness is more than just a short moment in an otherwise happily housed timeline.

One couple for whom this is true is Jon and Theresa, who have been guests at BWS last season and this season. They are senior citizens both over 70 years old. Together the two of them face life on the streets, moving from place to place and taking care of each other as best they can. Theresa says, “as long as we can be together we don’t care where we end up, we just want to be safe and warm.”

On mild nights the couple will take public transit out to the beach, but when the weather is cold, if they can’t find a weather-activated motel voucher they’ll bundle up and brave the elements as best they can. Despite their circumstances they both always have a kind word to share, doing their best to share what little they have with anyone else who is also in need.

It is our hope that people like Jon and Theresa won’t have to constantly search for their next place to stay but will eventually be able to access affordable housing that allows them to be safe and warm together for as long as they want it. Currently in California, for every 100 households eligible for low income housing, there are only 23 units available, meaning folks like Jon and Theresa continue to wait.
Immense gratitude to the participating chefs for sharing incredible dishes at Friends In Cheese.

Finally, in order for us to do our work, we need support from everyone. We had a wonderful event this past Monday night, Friends In Cheese, at Agnes Restaurant and Cheesery. Thank you so much to the nearly 100 people who attended, helping us to raise approximately $16K! Big thank you again to Thomas and Vanessa, owners of Agnes, and to all of the chefs who prepared amazing food. And a shout-out to the FID team: board members Richard Cheung and Stacy Santeramo, and staff members Merria Velasco, Elyse Reed and Lindsey Reed for making the event run so smoothly. We are already looking forward to next year!

Blessings, and have a lovely weekend,
Rabbi Joshua
